Health Plan - Examples and Explanations

An in-network provider is one contracted with the health insurance company to provide services to plan members for specific pre-negotiated rates. An out-of-network provider is one not contracted with the health insurance plan. The physician or other provider within the network, the amount you will be responsible for paying will be less than if you plan that you choose will dictate the type of coverage you have, and the rate you pay. Typically, if you visit a go to an out-of-network provider.

Example: Tom has a plan where he has only In-Network coverage and has no Out-of-Network. coverage. Tom's Primary Care Physician and Dermatologist are In-Network providers; therefore Tom will be covered for these services. If Tom visits a medical services provider that is Out-of- Network, Tom will be responsible for all the associated healthcare costs from that visit.

Example: Janet has a plan with In-Network and Out-of-Network coverages. Janet will be covered no matter where she receives her medical services. However, the deductibles, coinsurance, and co-pays will be different on the services performed Out-of-Network than services performed In-Network.

Calendar Year Deductible

This is the amount you have to pay in a calendar year before the plan begins to pay out. Note that not all services require you to meet the deductible. For example, there are plans that require you to pay up to the full deductible before Primary Care Physician, Specialist, or other office visits will be covered by insurance.

Example: Tom's Calendar Year Deductible is $2,500. Tom has a procedure done at a cost of $4,000. Depending on the insurance plan, Tom will most likely be responsible for covering the first $2,500 out of pocket, and the insurance will pay a portion of the remaining $1,500 according to the co-insurance. If the plan is a co-pay plan, Tom will be responsible for paying a co-pay between $30-$100 after the deductible limit is met.

Example: Janet's plan has no Calendar Year Deductible. This means that Janet's plan will begin to pay out for covered services right away, and Janet will only be responsible for co-pay or coinsurance for any covered services.

Copay

A copay is a fixed amount you pay for a health care service, usually when you receive the service. The amount can vary by the type of service. You may also have a copay when you get a prescription filled.

Coinsurance

Coinsurance is a health care cost sharing between you and your insurance company. Not all plans have coinsurance (some have copay). It is a split of the cost of the services - the number you see is the number the insurance company pays. You pay the remainder.

Example: Tom's plan provides 80% co-insurance after a yearly deductible of $1,000 if Tom receives any diagnostic procedures like X-Rays. Tom injures his leg playing soccer and needs an X-Ray done at a cost of $2,000. This means that Tom will be responsible for an out of pocket cost of $1,000 (up to deductible), plus 20% of the remainder which is $1,000. Tom's total expenses for the X-Ray (not including other medical care services) is $1,200. *Note: This assumes that Tom had not previously met his yearly deductible.

Example: Janet's plan provides for 100% coinsurance after a yearly deductible of $500. Janet sees her dermatologist for a skin rash at a cost of $3,000. Janet will pay out of pocket $500, and her plan will cover the remaining $2,500.

Max Out of Pocket Deductible

Out-of-Pocket Limit is the maximum amount of money you may pay for medical services in a calendar year. Out-of- pocket limit may not include deductible depending on insurers' definition of the term. The maximum amount of money you may spend for health care services also may vary whether they are in or out of network.

Example: Tom's plan has a Maximum Out of Pocket Deductible of $6,000. Tom gets into a terrible car accident and his recovery costs $150,000. Regardless of the dollar figure, the most Tom will pay out of pocket in the calendar year is $6,000. Note that if Tom's plan does not have Out-of-Network coverage, and Tom is treated by an Out-of-Network provider, Tom will be responsible for the entire $150,000.

Annual Lifetime Maximum

The Affordable Care Act prohibits health plans from putting annual or lifetime dollar limits on most benefits you receive. The Annual and Lifetime Maximums are a dollar limit on what insurance would spend for your covered benefits during the entire time you were enrolled in that plan. You were required to pay the cost of all care exceeding those limits.

Gatekeeper

A gatekeeper is a health insurance term used to describe the person in charge of a patient's treatment. Anyone who receives health insurance coverage in the form of a managed care plan, specifically a Health Maintenance Organization {HMO) plan, is assigned a gatekeeper or allowed to choose one. A gatekeeper's duty primarily is to manage a patient's treatment.

This means that the gatekeeper is in charge of authorizing the patient's referrals, hospitalizations, and lab studies. When a patient falls ill or needs to be referred to a specialist, the patient contacts the gatekeeper who, in turn, refers the patient to doctors and specialists within the plan network. Any plans that require a gatekeeper will require you to contact your PCP whenever you need a referral to see a specialist. Plans without a gatekeeper allow you to contact the specialist directly.

Example: Tom's plan is a Gatekeeper plan. Tom develops an extreme ear pain and needs to see an Ear, Nose, and Throat Doctor. Tom must first contact/schedule to see his Primary Care Physician, and must be referred to a specialist, before the plan will cover treatment. If Tom contacts an ENT Doctor before a referral is given, Tom will be responsible for the entire cost of the treatment, even if the ENT is In-Network and the treatment is medically necessary.

PCP Office Visits

This is the amount that will be covered under your plan for visits to your primary care physician. For plans with copay, you will pay the copay amount, and usually nothing towards the deductible. For plans with coinsurance, you will typically be responsible for paying up to the deductible, then a split with the insurance company.

Example: Tom's plan has a yearly $500 deductible with a 90% coinsurance after deductible for PCP visits. Tom visits his PCP in January for a cough at a cost of $800. Tom will be responsible for the first $500, and 10% of $800. Tom's total out of pocket expenses will be $580. In September, Tom visits his PCP complaining of constant headaches and the cost of the treatment is $500. Tom is responsible for $50 of the cost because he has already met his deductible for the year.

Example: Janet's plan has a yearly deductible of $1,000, with a $40 copay for PCP visits. Janet visits her PCP and is treated for a sore throat at a cost of $1,000. Because Janet's copay is unaffected by the deductible, Janet will pay $40 only for the treatment.

Specialist Office Visits

While your primary care doctor performs routine checkups and is generally the overseer of your healthcare, a specialty doctor - or specialist - addresses particular types of illness or specific parts of your body. If, for instance, you come down with a urinary tract infection, you may need to see a urologist. Or if your bad back starts acting up, you may want to see an orthopedic specialist. The same rules apply as your PCP visits regarding coinsurance and copay, depending on your plan.

Preventative Care

Most health plans cover a series of preventative services, like screenings and shots, at no cost to you when administered by a provider In-Network. These may include services like Blood Pressure Screening, Cholesterol Screening, HIV Screening, Immunizations, Counseling, and Flu Shots.

Diagnostic Procedures

Preventive care and diagnostic medical care both play an important part in keeping you as healthy as possible. But, sometimes the difference between the two isn't clear. Diagnostic medical care involves treating or diagnosing aproblem you're having by monitoring existing problems, checking out new symptoms, or following up on abnormal test results.

Outpatient Ambulatory Surgery

Outpatient care is medical service provided that does not require a prolonged stay at a facility. This can include routine services such as checkups or visits to clinics. Even more involved procedures such as surgical procedures, so long as they allow you to leave the hospital or facility on the same day, can still be considered as outpatient care.

Many surgical services, rehabilitation treatments, as well as mental health services are available as outpatient services. Outpatient care tends to be less expensive, since it is often less involved and does not require a patient's continued presence in a facility, which uses up less of the hospital or medical clinic's resources.

In-Patient Hospital Admission

Inpatient care generally refers to any medical service that requires admission into a hospital. Inpatient care tends to be directed towards more serious ailments and trauma that require one or more days of overnight stay at a hospital.

For the purposes of healthcare coverage, health insurance plans require you to be formally admitted into a hospital for a stay for a service to be considered inpatient. This means a doctor has to write a note to give the order to admit you, so if you were in the emergency room and were asked to stay overnight for "Medical Observation", it does not make you an inpatient.

ER Copay

This is the amount you will pay when visiting an Emergency Room for Emergency services. If you are admitted as an in-patient, then the ER Copay fees are waived and you will be responsible for the In-Patient Hospital Admission Copay.

Urgi-Center

This is the amount you will pay when visiting an Urgent Care Center instead of a PCP or other medical services provider.

Prescription Coverage

These are the amounts you will be paying for prescriptions to treat illness. Prescriptions are delegated to three tiers. The amount of copay you will be responsible for is dependent on the type of medication that you need. Note that some plans require you to meet the deductible before you can pay copay for your prescription medication.

Example: Tom's healthcare plan has a prescription coverage at $10/$35/$60 copay after a $1,500 deductible. Tom develops a serious infection and his medication costs him $300/bottle. Tom needs to take 1 bottle a week for 2 months for a total cost of $2,400 {8 treatments).

Tom will be responsible to pay for the first $1,500 worth of medication {5 treatments) and will pay the copay per bottle on the remaining bottles. If the copay is $10 for the Tier1 Medication, Tom's total out of pocket costs for the prescription is $1,530.

Example: Janet's healthcare plan has a prescription coverage at $10/$15/$25 and does not require her to meet the deductible before the plan pays out. Janet gets a terrible rash and requires a very expensive Tier 3 topical ointment for 1 month. The ointment costs $400 per tube, and lasts for 1 week. Even though the total cost of the prescription is $1,600, Janet is only responsible for $100 of copay {$25 x 4 tubes
